

Non-traditional Job Roles

In a survey of primary school age children, 95% of boys thought that car repairs should only be done by men and 85% of girls thought that washing and mending clothes should only be done by women.

What do you think?

Stereotypes pigeon hole males and females into fixed roles and behaviours, that deny individual aspirations and dreams

Look once again at the Occupations Tree activity that you did with your family members. Do you see a trend as to the types of jobs the male members and the female members of your family had?

How have jobs changes over the years?

Look at the list of jobs listed below and indicate which gender is associated with that job and why:

	Male	Female	Either	Reason why?
Ballet dancer
Carpenter
Chef
Park Ranger
Bus driver
Cleaner
Boat builder
Florist
Nurse
Computer technician
Armed forces
Lollipop person

Why do you think stereotyping males and females into traditional job roles limits work options?

Can you think of any jobs that you suit one gender better than the other? What are they?

Are there any jobs that you would not consider because you feel they are more suited to one gender than another? _____

What would be the advantage of matching your skills and abilities to a job that is often considered non-traditional to your gender? _____

What advice would you give to these people?

Luke is very creative and thinks that he would like to be a hairdresser. All his friends tease him and call him a 'sissy'. Now Luke is beginning to think that maybe he will do something else so the teasing will stop.

Shelly's dad is a truck driver and she often drives with him during the school holidays. When Shelly told her friends that she was going to drive trucks when she leaves school they laughed and call her 'butch' and 'half man'. Shelly is very hurt.
